INTERNAL UNREST CAUSE OF FALL OF ITALIAN CABINET

Crisis Of Unprecedented Character Effect Of Nation's Discontent

PARTIES SPLIT UP

Communist Republic Aim Of One Faction Of The Extremists

FIUME FACTOR TOO

Nationalist And Army Interests Angry Over Paris Decisions.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 20.—The reasons for the fall of the Italian Cabinet have been explained by Dr. Dillon in a telegram from Paris to the Daily Telegraph.

Country Seethes With Discontent

He says that Italy is seething with discontent and an unprecedented crisis, moral, economic and political has broken out. The Extremists are divided into two sections; namely, the Confederates and Independents. The former consist of revolutionists who opposed the war and are now striving to overthrow the regime and establish a Communist Republic under a proletarian dictatorship. The latter approved the war but are disappointed at the results and have proclaimed a strike, ostensibly to protest against the dearness of living, but really to forestall a revolutionary strike by the Confederates.

Other Parties In Clash

The Extremists are opposed by the Nationalists and Militarists who are indignant at the Peace Conference's treatment of the Italian questions.

The Government is caught between these hostile camps.

KIRIN AND FENGTIEN TUCHUNS ARE AT OUTS

Peking Sends Chang Hsi-sun To Manchuria To Adjust Their Differences

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

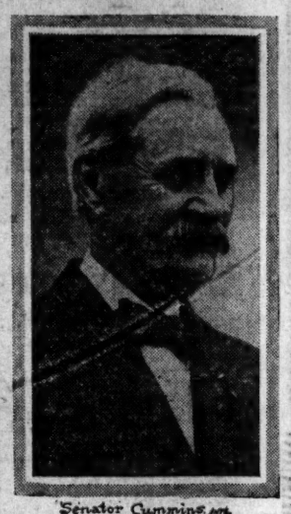
Peking, June 25.—A serious conflict has arisen between Chang Tso-lin, the Tuchun of Fengtien and Meng En-yuan, the Tuchun of Kirin. The root of the trouble appears to be the appointment of Chang Tso-lin last year as Inspecting Commissioner of the Three Eastern Provinces.

Chang Tso-lin had no difficulty in extending his influence over Heilungkiang. The Tuchun of which, Pao Kwei-ching, is one of his followers, but he has been constantly opposed by Meng En-yuan, especially in matters relating to Japanese policy in Manchuria. For example; some time ago Chang Tso-lin ordered the explusion of all Korean shopkeepers from Manchuria. The order was carried out in Fengtien and Heilungkiang, but was ignored in Kirin.

Chang Tso-lin has now demanded the dismissal of Meng En-yuan and despatched troops to Yitunchow, on the boundary of the two provinces, under there circumstances, Meng En-yuan had taken defensive measures.

In view of the serious nature of the situation, the Central Government has appointed Chang Hsi-lun, the first Tuchun of Fengtien after the Revolution, to proceed to Manchuria to mediate between the two Generals.

New President Pro Tem Of U.S. Senate



Senator Cummins.

An excellent snapshot, taken in Washington, of Senator Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa, recently named by the Republicans as president pro tem, of the Senate. Senator Cummins was born at Carmichaels, Green County, Pa., February 15, 1850. He studied law in Chicago and in 1874 was admitted to the bar. Four years later he went to Des Moines, where he became active in politics. In 1893 he made his first attempt to reach the Senate. It was fifteen years before he got there. Meanwhile he served three terms as Governor of Iowa, winning a national reputation as a progressive. In 1917 he objected to sending American ships carrying munitions and was one of the twelve characterised by President Wilson as, "a little group of willful men."

In May 1917, he introduced the amendment to the Espionage Bill prohibiting the use of grain or cereals in manufacting liquor. Later he demanded the Government buy the railroads and introduced a bill to forbid their return to private ownership. He insisted that Senators go to Paris for the Peace Conference and has vigorously apposed the League of Nations.

French Mine Strikes Peacefully Adjusted

Differences Are Arbitrated To Satisfaction Of Both Sides By Ministers

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 20.—The Miners in Pas de Calais resumed work today.

Troubles Are Arbitrated

Paris, June 19.—The strike of the coal miners in the Nord and Pas de Calais departments has been ended by the arbitration of the Ministers of Labor and Reconstruction, who rendered a decision to the satisfaction of both strikers and employers.

In the regions where the miners strike continues complete calm prevails.

Bolshevist Pause In Siberia May Be Forerunner Of New Offensive In Perm Region

Soviet Government's Proclamation Offers Seven Million Roubles For Koltchak's Head—Don Cossacks Join Denikin

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Omsk, June 23.—Reports are coming in that the Bolshevist offensive towards Slatousk is slackening.

An attack is expected in the Perm region where considerable forces belonging to the Siberian Army are concentrated along the Kama, including the Suffolk contingent.

All the man power in West Siberia is being demobilised.

General Dietrichs has been appointed Commander-in-chief of the whole front.

Reuter's correspondent recently interviewed the commander of the Division which was severely mauled near Ufa. The Commander said: "The Bolshevists had three machine-guns to our one, which was used very dexterously. The Reds are using gas in increasing quantities. Officers falling into their hands are atrociously mutilated."

Want Koltchak's Head

A Bolsheyik wireless message from Moscow states the Soviet Government has issued a proclamation offering a reward of seven million roubles for the head of Admiral Koltchak.

The Siberians are making active preparation for an advance from Glasoff to Viatka.

The forests in the vicinity of Glasoff are discovered to be full of deserters from the Red Army.

The Western Army have taken up a defensive position along the Belaya river.

Ufa is still being bombarded.

Desultory fighting is going along the whole front with varying success.

Counter Attack Fails

A Bolshevist counter-drive against the Western Army collapsed owing to heavy withdrawals to reinforce their Southern Army, whose position according to intercepted wireless messages, is rendered serious by General Denikin's advance.

Don Cossacks Aid Denikin

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 20.—A rising has broken out among the Don Cossacks 120 miles northeast of Lugansk. These were originally fighting in the ranks of the Volunteer Army but went over to the Bolshevists in February. After a period of Bolshevist rule they have decided to throw off the yoke and rejoin General Denikin. They consist of 22,000 men.

There is no doubt that General Denikin has joined up with these insurgents as his offensive has brought him beyond the area of the rising and these reinforcements will be a welcome addition to his forces.

RUHR REGION IS SCENE OF COMMUNIST UPRISING

Attempt To Seize Towns Made By Radical Forces Armed With Machine Guns

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, June 20.—A message from Essen states that Communists, equipped with machine-guns, attempted to seize the towns of Hamborn and Sterkrade with a view to proclaiming a Soviet Republic in the Ruhr region. The revolt failed. The Government is bringing up reinforcements.

WILSON IS WELCOMED AT BRUSSELS CHAMBER

Following Ceremony President Sees Cardinal Mercier And Goes To Louvain

(Reuter's Service)

Brussels, June 20.—On the occasion of the visit of President Wilson the Chamber was crowded and decorated. Mrs. Wilson, with the Queen, were the first to arrive, followed by the Allied Food Controller, Mr. Hoover. Then President Wilson with King Albert arrived. They were all given an ovation.

The President of the Chamber welcomed the visitors and paid a tribute to President Wilson and the American people.

M. Hymans, the Foreign Minister, followed with a speech in which he outlined Belgium's part and suffering in the war and also Belgium's aspirations. He paid a tribute to President Wilson's lofty idealism.

Plesident Wilson in replying eulogised King Albert and The Generals who never surrendered.

He said that Belgium was the call of duty which awakened the world to the real character of the problem. The League of Nations was the inevitable consequence of the war. It was a League of Right, and any nation declining to adhere to the Covenant would be deliberately rejecting the most telling appeal ever made to its conscience and its manhood. He purposed asking the United States Congress, as a recognition of the equality of Belgium, to raise the Belgian Legation at Washington to the rank of an Embassy.

The ceremony terminated amidst ovations.

President Wilson was subsequently received by Cardinal Mercier and then proceeded to Louvain.

Canadians In Raid At Epsom Remanded

Eight Held For Manslaughter Due To Killing Of Police Sergeant

London, June 20.—Eight Canadians were charged at Bow Street with manslaughter in connection with the death of a police sergeant at Epsom on the 18th. The prisoners were remanded for a week.

Cardinal Lucon, Of Rheims, Solemnly Swears Cathedral Never Was Military Base

Swears Rheims never was military base.

An unusually interesting photograph taken at Rheims at the moment when Cardinal Lucon, of the world famous cathedral, solemnly swore that his cathedral never served as a military base. The German military authorities when called to account for the wanton destruction of the famous cathedral in 1916 stated that the French were using the church as a barracks and as a lookout post. Listening to Cardinal Lucon is Admiral Levison and other high naval officers of the British navy.

COMMUNIST UPRISING IN VIENNA IS SERIOUS

Order Restored But Another Uprising To Overthrow Government Is Feared

(Reuter's Service)

Vienna, June 20.—During a Communist demonstration 8 persons were killed and 66 wounded. The police fired a volley into the crowd. Eight police were seriously injured. Order has been restored but it is feared that another attempt is likely as the Communists are in an ugly mood.

The Arbeiter Zeitung declares that the Communists are fed with funds from the Budapest Soviet and this demonstration was part of a Communist plot to overthrow the Government but it was foiled by the arrest of 120 leaders.

CLEMENCEAU LOOKS FOR TREATY TO BE SIGNED SATURDAY

Reasons Demobilisation May Be Delayed Are Given By Premier

ITALY WILL SIGN

Fall Of German Cabinet Caused By Conflict Over Acceptance Of Terms

STRIKE EXPECTED

Weimar Said To Be Prey Of Rumors Of Every Description

(French Wireless To Reuter)

Paris, June 25.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—Concerning the signature of the Treaty of Peace at Versailles, M. Clemenceau stated that it was possible to reckon on Saturday, not later than 2 p.m.

The Minister of Marine declared that France was determined to exact reparation for the destruction of the German fleet.

The Premier also made certain statements on the subject of demobilisation, the date of the elections and that of the signature of peace.

Gives Review Of Situation

"I fear," declared M. Clemenceau, "the one cannot be done without the other. . . . The Germans have sunk their fleet at Scapa Flow, In Berlin they have burned all the French flags of 1870 and those of 1914, which ought to have been restored to us. In Poland the situation is still full of menace. Several wireless messages have been intercepted indicating their determination not to evacuate that unhappy country. If the demobilisation is subordinated to military emergencies I continue to think that the country ought to be called upon as soon as possible to make known its wishes by fresh elections and any further postponement should not be beyond the end of September or the beginning of October.

Arrange For Soldiers' Vote

"The poilus, understand, cannot all be demobilised by that time. Why not however, in cases where some classes will still be with the colors, make arrangements to vote by mail? Our Allies, the British, did they not do this? It should also be possible to consider a system of leave which will permit them to fulfill their electoral duties. In a word it is the intention of the Government that every poilu in the Reserves shall take part in the National Elections."

Italian Delegation Is Instructed To Sign

(Reuter's Service)

Paris June 23.—The Italian delegates have been instructed to sign the Treaty of Peace on behalf of Italy.

Italians Are Expected

(French Wireless To Reuter)

Paris, June 25.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—The new Italian delegation is expected to arrive in Paris on Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The delegation is composed of Signor Tittoni, formerly Minister for Foreign Affairs, as chief of the Delegation; and Senators Scialotti, Ferrari and Marconi.

German Cabinet's Fall Due To Split Over Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, June 20.—A message from Weimar states that it is confidently expected that the retirement of the Cabinet will result on the signing of the Peace Treaty.

The resignation is directly due to the fact that a clear majority was obtained for the signature at an Inter-party meeting. Herrn Noske, Schmidt, Wissel, David and Ezberger are expected to enter the new cabinet.

The resignations of Herr Scheidemann and Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and Herrn Giesberts and Landsberg are regarded as certain.

Cabinet Carrying On

Copenhagen, June 20.—A message from Weimar states that the Scheidemann Cabinet is still carrying on provisionally pending the formation of a new Cabinet.

General Strike Planned

Berlin, June 20.—A message from Danzig states that the Industrial Workers' Councils at a mass meeting resolved on a general strike in the event of armed action by military castes against the Entente advance in West Prussia.

The military authorities at Memel have mounted howitzers facing the sea.

Situation In Weimar

Berlin, June 20.—A message from Weimar says that the city is a prey to rumors of every description. The Cabinet sat all the morning and resumed in the evening.

The latest news is that a majority of the Cabinet favors signing the Treaty of Peace.

The various parties held sittings throughout the day. The Centrist Party decided by a four-fifths majority in favor of signing, with reservations regarding war responsibilities. The National Party was unanimously in favor of rejection, and the Democratic Party, by a majority, was against the signature.

Paper Favors Signing

Cologne, June 20.—The Cologne Gazette favors acceptance of the Peace Treaty.

Result Of Test Votes

Berlin, June 20.—The test votes of the Parties at Weimar already show that the Peace terms will infallibly be accepted. The decisive factor is the voting of the Majority Socialists which gave a considerable majority for signing, thus leaving no doubt that the working-classes solidly favor signing the Treaty.

The papers state that at yesterday's meeting of the Federal State Committee the representatives of Prussia declared for rejection, the representatives of Saxony for acceptance while representatives of Bavaria were divided.

Calls Terms Impossible

Copenhagen, June 20.—A message from Weimar states that Government financial experts have passed a resolution that the financial terms in the Peace Treaty are impossible from an economic point of view.

Slow To Reach Decision

Berlin, June 19.—A message from Weimar states that a majority of the National Assembly favor signing the Peace Treaty but, according to a semi-official statement, the Cabinet, after several hours discussion of the Entente's reply in conjunction with the Peace Delegates remained of opinion that the terms were intolerable. A final decision will be taken today.

Previous French Views Heard

Paris, June 17, (delayed).—The French military view is that the Germans will sign but not until the Allies' armies have advanced, desirous to have the excuse that they yielded to force.

The French Government view is that the Germans are inclined not to sign except they realise that the Allies are absolutely united. They still hope to play one off against the other at the eleventh hour.

From information reaching the French Foreign Office, the German delegation is divided, some urging compliance and others resistance.

Text Is Published

London, June 20.—The text of the Peace Treaty has been published. It consists of 417 quarto pages, printed in French and English, and does not include the Convention relating to the military occupation of the left bank of the Rhine.

Scheidemann's Downfall Pleases

Paris, June 20.—The financial clauses of the Austrian Treaty are ready and also the Italian and military clauses.

The downfall of Scheidemann has caused satisfaction in Conference circles as it is believed that this assures the signing of Peace, to which Scheidemann was the chief opponent.

Lung Chien-chan Is Visitor At Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 25.—Lung Chien-chan, ex-Governor of Kweichow, arrived at Peking today from Kwangsi. Government circles state that Lung's visit was of no political significance but it is understood from other sources that Lung has been entrusted by Inspector-General Li Yung-ting to report to the Government concerning the situation at Canton.

Russian Ballet

The second and last ballet by Helene Pavlova, Russian dancer from Petrograd, and her company was given before an appreciative audience at the Lyceum Theater last night. There was a new program, which was as well received as that which was given Monday night.

Miss Pavlova herself gave the principal numbers and proved again that she carries ably the tradition of the Russian classic dancers. Her partner, Wasiliy Krupin, gives her good support, being a vigorous as well as a graceful male dancer, while Miss Pavlova's sister, Nadejda Pavlova, was charming.

Mme. Elvira Zanutta-Rubini, whose vocal solos were encored on Monday night, again afforded an attractive variation to a good evening's program.

NEW NAVY Y.M.C.A. OPENS IN SPACIOUS QUARTERS

Many Guests Attend Reception And Housewarming Given At Avenue Edward VII Home

The spacious new quarters of the Navy Y. M. C. A. at 6 Avenue Edward VII, handsomely decorated and trimmed with flags for the occassion, were filled with guests yesterday evening for the opening reception and housewarming.

The success of the affair is largely due to the efforts of the committee of forty American ladies, headed by Mrs J. S. Lobingier, who had charge of the arrangements. The orchestra from Admiral Rodgers' flagship played during the afternoon and tasty refreshments including ices, tea and a most seductive array of homemade cakes, were served. Among the visitors who called to inspect the quarters and meet the new secretary, Mr. William R. Durbin, were Admiral Rodgers and his staff, Consul-General Sammons, Judge C. S. Lobingier and many prominent members of the American community as well as a large number of the American and Allied sailors in port.

The new "Y" home is a a three-story structure with large rooms and if necessary can provide sleeping quarters for eighty men. The basement is shortly to be fitted with cold showers and baths and within the next few days a well equipped gymnasium and auditorium, to be fitted up in an adjoining building, will be added to the establishment. The first floor of the "Y" proper is given over to the general and secretary's offices, a big billiard room and general and private dining rooms, with pantry attached—the kitchen being located in the basement, with a lift to the pantry. The soda fountain is also located on the first floor.

On the second floor is the dormitory, fitted with twenty cots, and with sixty more available on call. Here also are spacious game rooms and reading and writing rooms, lockers, washroom, baths and lavatories. The third floor is at present in use as servants' quarters.

Mr. Durbin, who arrived in Shanghai recently from Mare Island, California, where he was secretary of the Navy Y. M. C. A., replaces Mr. Fred C. Rumsey, the popular first secretary of the local Navy "Y." Mr. Rumsey went into Y.M.C.A. war work shortly after America entered the struggle and came out to Shanghai last October with instructions to organise for a campaign of extensive serivce here.

Following were the ladies who served on the various committees in charge of yesterday's affair: Hostesses—Mesdames. W. H. Lunt, W. C. Sprague, L. F. Shapley, J. B. Sawyer, T. F. Cobbs, J. W. Gallagher, G. E. Tucker, J. H. Dollar, C. P. Holcomb, J. B. Fearn, C. L. Seitz and W. A Burns. Decorations—Mesdames, J. B. Sawyer, R. J. Clarke, T. N. Alexander, W. S. Fleming, P. L. Bryant, J. H. Black, C. N. Caldwell and C. F. Remer. Refreshments—Mesdames T. N. Alexander, R. J. Clarke, N. E. Lurton, R. H. Gregory, W. A. B. Nichols, C. L. Boynton, E. C. Stocker, W. H. Lacy, F. J. Seeman, N. New Cafe Parisien To Open Next Week

The new Cafe-Restaurant Parisien, located in the Ben Building, Avenue Edward VII, is expected to be opened about July 1. The new cafe, while including the premises formerly occupied by the Cafe Trianon has been considerably extended as well as completely rearranged and will include a spacious ballroom, general and private dining rooms and a separate bar which will be fitted also as a lounge and reading room. The ballroom occupies the newly added space at the west end of the building and is being artistically finished in gold, pale buff and white. Private dining rooms are placed back of the ballroom and the public dining room to the east, with the bar, which is finished in dark paneling, at the opposite end from the dance floor.

Prisoners In Jail Enjoy Opium Smokes

Two Using Equipment Of Odd Character Given New Sentences By Court

Two prisoners serving civil sentences in the Mixed Court house of detention appeared before Assessor Spiker and Magistrate Li yesterday on the charge of smoking opium in their cells and were given six week's imprisonment each.

The smoking outfits which were seized by Sergeant G. Sale, who discovered the smokers, were of primitive model, the component parts thereof being such as might readily be carried into the jail without arousing suspicion. The pipe head was formed of a small earthenware bottle, such as is used to contain Chinese medicines, with a small opening bored in one side and a short length of bamboo fitted into the neck with rags to serve as stem. A frightfully abandoned butter tin furnished the base of the "cooking" lamp, within which rested a small glass vaseline bottle filled with bean oil and a wick as the lamp proper. The lamp chimney consisted of the neck and shoulders of a beer bottle, remarkable well cut. The pipes were well seasoned.

News Brevities

BANK OF CHINA MEETING AT PEKING POSTPONED

Word Is Received Here That Project Shareholders Opposed Will Not Be Carried Out

The general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of China called for July 29 in Peking will not be held, according to a telegram from the Bank of China in Peking to the local office of the bank yesterday. The message reads:

"We have received a letter from the Ministry of Finance, stating that as a number of telegrams has been received from the shareholders of the various provinces to say that they would not be able to attend the general meeting called for July 29 and that the date of the meeting should be temporarily postponed and as both government and merchant shareholders of the bank have separately asked for an extention of time, it appears that it would be difficult to hold the meeting as originally planned and you are requested to inform the shareholders to this effect."

Another Message Received

The local bank also received yesterday the following report from the board of directors of the bank about the negotiations between the Peking directors and the Acting Premier with reference to the proposed change of the Constitution of the bank.

"A delegation of representatives of the board of directors were sent to interview Acting Premier Kung Hsin-chan yesterday to point out the infringement on the rights of the shareholders by the proposed restoration of the 1913 Constitution of the Bank of China. In reply, Mr. Kung stated that the bill as introduced by the Senate was only forwarded to the Cabinet and was not submitted to the President for approval. Such conduct on the part of the Senate was illegal, according to Mr. Kung. He further said since the Ministry of Finance has returned the bill to the Senate for amendment and the latter has already placed this matter on the agenda of the meeting of the Senate, the proposal to restore the 1913 Constitution would naturally be invalid. What the ministry proposes to ask the Senate to amend was about the clause to reduce the amount of capital to be immediately subscribed from $30,000,000 to $20,000,000 which should be amended to read "for the shareholders to decide" and not "to agree."

"In reply, the delegation announced that about the subscription of $20,000,000 capital, this should be left to the shareholders to decide at their general meeting and that the representatives were not in a position to decide for them.

"The Senate will meet tomorrow to discuss about the amendment, but we beg to report to you about what had happened yesterday."

Collector Sentenced For Embezzlement

Charles E. Hedges, a collector for the Shanghai Waterworks Company charged with embezzling the equivalent of G.$392, was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment at Bilibid prison, Manila, by Judge C. S. Lobingier in United States Court for China yesterday. The defendant was also fined the amount of money taken, with subsidiary imprisonment in case of insolvency and to pay the costs of the prosecution. The time added to the sentence by failure to pay the fine amounts to over five months.

The defendant pleaded guilty and his counsel, Mr. Sterling Fessenden, entered the plea of intoxication, which the court stated was not an excuse, nor even a mitigating circumstance, under the law. United States District Attorney Holcomb prosecuted.

Hedges, together with Walter George Wallace, who was convicted of conspiracy to sell opium recently, will be sent to Manila by the Ecuador tomorrow.

COUNT DE SAVINE SHORN OF HIS MARTIAL PANOPLY

Mixed Court Orders Him To Wear Civilian Garb, Also To Leave Shanghai

The tall, imposing figure of Count de Toulouse Lautrec de Savine may be seen again, briefly, upon the streets of Shanghai, but not—by reason of Mixed Court decree of yesterday—decked in the panoply of a Russian army officer. Shortly, however—also by Mixed Court ruling—the Count will depart from here, unless certain investigations being made by the police seem to warrant his retention.

Count de Savine appeared yesterday before Russian Assessor Ivanoff and Magistrate Kwan on the charge of wearing the uniform of a Russian general without authorisation. The complaint was laid by the Russian Consul-General. Detective Sergeant Schmidt testified that the Count was wearing the uniform at the time of his arrest last Saturday, besides several medals. The secretary of the Russian Consulate then read a letter stating that the defendant had been warned not to appear in uniform a year ago and also stating that the defendant had on June 24, after his arrest, addressed a letter to the Russian judge and Vice-Consul, abusing and insulting certain Russian officials here and in other China cities. The Consul-General asked that the defendant be ordered to leave the Settlement.

Detective Inspector Reeves testified that when arrested the Count had a number of documents purporting to relate to deposits of money in banks in various European cities, on which deposits he had drawn checks in Shanghai and other places. In one case there was a receipt of the Bank of Chosen for Frs. 4,500. A check drawn against this had been dishonored by the Netherlands Bank in Holland, had been returned here and forwarded to Mukden and the branch here had been advised that the paper was dishonored by the Mukden bank. The police had been unable to trace the other checks as they were issued in Mukden. Some of the papers related to deposits in Tientsin, London and Philadelphia. Among the documents was also found an American income tax return wherein the Count set forth that he was an American.

"I am an American," interposed the defendant.

The Inspector handed into court a confidential report on the Count's record by the French authorities.

"Lies, all lies," declared the defendant.

Asked what excuse he had to offer for failure to profit by the warning not to wear uniform, the Count professed willingness to abandon the outfit and asked that he be sent back to Harbin to join the Russian army.

"You are not a Russian," declared the Assessor.

"I am a Russian, the same as you," was the Count's revised declaration of nationality.

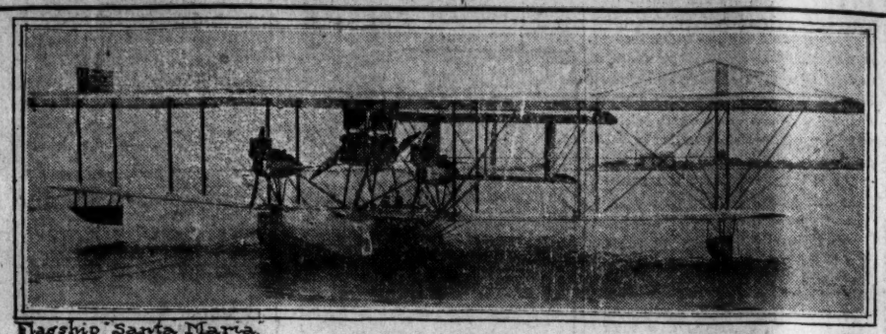
The court ruled that the accused was to give an undertaking in writing not to wear the uniform of a Russian officer or any part therof without permission of the authorities concerned, that he was to apologise for the letter he had written and that he will leave Shanghai as soon as other charges against him, if any, have been dealt with.

Inspector Reeves stated that there were no charges at present and asked that the documents referred to and checks be handed over to the police for further investigation.

Count de Savine was also a defendant yesterday in the civil court where his landlady asked the settling of a bill of $22. The Count had tendered a check on a Philadelphia bank. The court ordered him to make payment in Shanghai currency and to pay costs of $6.50 for the action.

Count de Savine, according to the records, has an international acquaintance with penal accommodations.

Commander Towers To Rechristen NC Planes Pinta, Nina And Santa Maria



Flagship "Santa Maria." INTC

Commander Towers, who was in charge of the successful American transocean flight, compared the three big seaplanes to the caravels of Columbus, and added that the NCs 1, 3 and 4 will be rechristened Nina, Santa Maria and Pinta respectively, accordingly to a despatch received here. Commander Towers directed the flight from the NC-3, which will be renamed Santa Maria, in honor of the flagship of America's discoverer.

ENGINEERS TO BE NAMED FOR LIAO RIVER WORK

Britisher And Japanese Will Be Appointed To Carry Out Conservancy Project

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 23.—Reuter's Agency learns the following details concerning the recent position with regard to the conservancy of the Liao River:

Mr. W. R. Hughes, who for ten years had been engineer for the conservancy of the upper and lower reaches of the Liao River, died on January 11, 1918. Certain works had been carried out on the latter with the assistance of funds provided by a Customs surtax under an arrangement made between the Diplomatic Body in Peking and the Chinese Government. As regards the upper reaches of the river the work was nominally under the control of the Provincial Government, which should have provided the necessary funds. They seemed, however, opposed to the carrying out of any improvement in that section of the river, and the only work there which Mr. Hughes had undertaken—the regulation of the Shuang Tai Tzu channel—they deliberately undid.

Considerable pressure was subsequently brought to bear on the Chinese authorities by the representatives of more than one Power with regard to the appointment of a successor to Mr. Hughes, the desire of some persons being that a single engineer should be appointed to take charge of work on both upper and lower reaches of the river.

On February 22, 1919, the Waichiaopu proposed that a Japanese engineer should be appointed for the upper reaches and a British engineer for the lower reaches of the river; the salaries of both engineers to be provided from the Customs surtax and the contracts of both to be drawn up by the Liao River Conservancy Bureau. On April 9 this proposal was formally accepted by the British and Japanese Legations. The Ministers of Powers more especially concerned also expressed their informal agreement with the proposal.

On June 12 a meeting of the Liao River Conservancy Board took place at the Newchwang Customs House and it was unanimously agreed that the proposal be adopted, identical contracts for a period of three years each to be drawn up with each engineer.

SUN TO-YU APPOINTED RAILWAY COMMISSIONER

Director Of Chuchow-Chinlien Road Named To Succeed Late Dr. Jime Tien-yu

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 23.—The Chinese press reports that Mr. Sun To-yu, Director of the Chuchow-Chinlien Railway, has been appointed Technical Representative of the Chinese Government on the Chinese Eastern Railway Commission in succession to the late Dr. Jime Tien-yu.

Messrs. Wang Yu-ling and Chiang Shao-chieh, two members of the Northern Delegation to the Internal Peace Conference, will start for Nanking and Shanghai tomorrow with a view to the resumption of peace negotiations with the South. The Cabinet office has telegraphed to Mr. Chu Chi-chien, Chief Northern Delegate, requesting him to proceed to Shanghai as soon as his sore foot is completely cured.

Chefoo News Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Chefoo, June 22.—We have just had another heavy fall of rain. After that which fell in the early part of last week we have had about enough and so we trust that we shall get no more for a little while. It is hardly time for the rainy season.

The Rev. and Mrs. Matthews reached here last Tuesday and the former commenced his ministry in St. Andrew's Church this morning. There was a fair attendance at both the Sunday Services.

July 4 is to be a great day here. The American community met a few days ago and decided to celebrate the anniversary by giving a garden party in the grounds of the American Consulate, when the whole American community will be at home to their friends in Chefoo. The plans for the entertainment include, among several charming items, a special cinema entertainment, a musical program and comic side shows. Refreshments are to be served during the evening and the proceedings are to terminate with the ever popular dance. An invitation is to be extended to all the Allied and neutral friends and it is hoped that they will all be present in fancy dress. It is thus hoped to make the evening one of the jolliest in the annals of local history. Chefoo has had experience in the past of what July 4 can be, but the coming celebrations are intended to completely eclipse everything previously held. We can confidently expect therefore to have the evening of our lives.

Republican Old Guard Allows Insurgents To Win At Opening Senate Caucus

Expected Clash Over Cummins' Selection As President Pro Tem. Disappears Before Smiles Of G. O. P. Regulars

Washington, May 14.—Harmony and the dove of peace were the prevailing symbols at the conference of Republican Senators today. All disagreeable things, such as Penrose and Warren and the League of Nations, were temporarily laid aside. Smiling faces and pleasant smiles alone were visible. The stiletto and the blackjack were hidden.

Forty-three of the forty-nine Republican Senators attended this joy feast. In less than an hour the organisation of the Senate was mapped and the strain was over. The absentees were Senators La Follette, Gronna, Townsend, Fall, Lenroot and Cummins. It developed that Senator Cummins was so overcome by modesty he would not be present and hear himself named for President pro tem. Senator Borah and all the other warring progressives occupied front seats.

Lodge Made Chairman

The curtain raiser was opened by Senator Knox, who proposed Senator Lodge for chairman of the conference. This unanimously prevailed. Mr. Calder named Mr. Wadsworth for secretary and this was accepted in the same hearty manner. At the suggestion of Senator Sutherland, Senator Curtis was made "whip," retaining the position he held last session.

Senator Brandegee moved the appointment of a Committee on Committees, Senator McCumber a Steering Committee, and Senator New a Patronage Committee. Each will comprise nine members. Senators Brandegee, McCumber and New will be the chairman. Chairman Lodge will designate the membership.

Senator Borah, on behalf of the progressives nominated Senator Cummins for president pro tem. The suggestion was unanimously accepted. Earlier in the day a delegation, composed of both regulars and progressives, waited on Senator Johnson of California and urged him to reconsider his declination and take the job. He remained obdurate, so the progressives concentrated on Senator Cummins.

George A. Sanderson of Chicago was made secretary of the Senate; David S. Barry of this city, Sergeant-at-Arms; Carl A. Loeffler, acting assistant doorkeeper on the floor of the Senate.

Selection Of Chaplain Passed

The matter of choosing a chaplain was passed over for the present.

The Norris resolution to prevent the concentration of power in a few hands was partially adopted. There will be ten first-class committees. These are: Appropriations, Agriculture, Commerce, Finance, Foreign Relations, Interstate Commerce, Judiciary, Military Affairs, Naval Affairs, and Post Offices and Post Roads. No chairman of a committee may be a member of more than one major committee. He may not serve on more than two conference committees.

It was announced by Senator Lodge that he would not name the three readjustment committees today. "These are very important committees," he said, "and great care must be taken in the selection of members."

It is now expected a report from these committees will be ready by the first of next week, and possibly later. The officers designated will be chosen Monday, but the committees will be taken up at some later date.

Disposition To Name Smoot

Many of the regulars indicated a disposition to make Senator Smoot head of the Appropriations Committee and leave Senator Warren to be chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, although he has positively said he would not take the place because of his relationship to Pershing.

When the Committee on Committees formulates its report another conference of the Republicans will be convened. The places have been allotted on that committee to the progressives. These will be given to Senators Kenyon and Jones of Washington.

The new conference will witness whatever fireworks are to be touched off by the progressives. The fight will begin when Senators Penrose and Warren are recommended for chairmen of the Finance and Appropriations Committees. It will be impossible to secure their rejection in the conference. Whatever is accomplished must be done on the floor of the Senate, where a majority and not a plurality is required to elect.

Last Ditch Fighters

The positive declaration was made tonight that at least six and possibly ten progressive Senators will fight to the last against Senators Penrose and Warren. This would be amply sufficient to indefinitely prevent their selection. The six last ditch senators are said to be Borah, Kenyon, Norris, McCormick, Jones of Washington and Johnson of California.

The Old Guard pretended to be unafraid and insist that Senators Penrose and Warren will go through. But they say no arrangement has been made whereby an offsetting number of Democrats will absent themselves to permit this selection.

The regulars plan to select committees en bloc, but the progressives will demand separate votes on Finance and Appropriations. Despite harmony prospects of trouble loom bleak and stormy before the Old Guard.

The League of Nations feature of the peace treaty either should be amended or rejected is the opinion expressed by a large proportion of incoming Senators. Even those Democratic Senators who will vote for ratification as the treaty now stands, if no modification can be accomplished, favor some substantial amendments. They will support efforts to make these changes and then approve the treaty as drawn if these attempts fail.

Amendments Are Urged

Forty-five Republican Senators now are here ready for the session's work. Almost without exception these believe some substantial amendments should be made in the League of Nations covenant. It is said that Senator McNary, who recently announced his support of the compact, now declares that at least one modification is essential to make it satisfactory.

It developed today that Senator-elect Capper of Kansas, who announced his adherence to the league, has reached the conclusion that one or more amendments are necessary to make the agreement satisfactory and acceptable. Other incoming Senators are taking a similar view of the situation.

Reports from all sections of the country indicate that opposition is becoming more pronounced to certain provisions of the covenant, especially that which would send American soldiers abroad to fight in foreign wars. Opposing Senators insist that this feature, which appears in Article X. must be eliminated.

Will Begin Debate Early

It is predicted today that debate on the peace treaty will begin almost immediately after Congress convenes. It is said a number of set speeches will be made.

The designation of Senator Brandegee to head the committee which will rearrange the personnel of the Foreign Relations Committee apparently makes it certain that this body will be formed with a majority opposed to the League as submitted. Senator Brandegee is strongly anti-league and will be relied upon to make sure that the Foreign Relations Committee will be hostile to the agreement as now framed.

In the opinion of Senator Borah there is no possibility of the Triple Alliance plan being approved by the Senate. He says that it constitutes a direct alliance with a foreign power and cannot receive approval.

"I have enough plain propositions before me now without discussing a hypothetical question," said Senator Lodge when asked for an opinion on the proposed Triple Alliance.

Troubled seas are tossing about the flimsy shell of the tentative House organisation framed by the Republicans in March. The test will come Saturday night when they meet in caucus.

Gillett Outgeneralled

Since James R. Mann, defeated for Speaker by Frederick H. Gillett, broke the Gillett slate, the Gillett followers have been completely outgeneralled by Mr. Mann and his supporters. Because of an unusual political situation Mr. Mann and his friends have made the Speakership a mere bauble, stripped of power. Mr. Gillett's opponents got nearly every important job and committee.

Efforts of Representative Longworth one of Mr. Gillett's supporters, to change the Mann plan are to regain a measure of authority for the prospective Speaker.

Sharp warning came today from the Mann camp that if the Longworth fight is not called off there will be trouble in the caucus, the implication being that they will try to oust Gillett as party nominee for Speaker. They disclaim any intention to nominate Mr. Mann again, but say they will find another unless their plans are left alone.

The parliamentary procedure will be favorable in the caucus to Mr. Mann and his friends. If Mr. Longworth or some other Gillett man offers a motion to reconsider the caucus action fixing the size of the Steering Committee, some one on the other side will move to reconsider all the former action of the caucus. If this carries, and the Mann forces claim enough votes to put it through, it will vacate all former proceedigs.

Advantage With Mann

The Mann supporters have an advantage in that they can throw the responsibility for delay on the Gillett crowd. Reconsideration of the entire plan of organisation would delay the House in passing important appropriation and legislative bills.

On the other hand, Mr. Gillett was nominated for Speaker by an overwhelming majority, which could change matters if it desired. The Mann strength is being exercised through the Committee on Committees, on which is an overwhelming majority of his friends. It is with the men who voted for Mr. Gillett to decide if they will leave the present plans unchanged.

TRAFFIC ISLANDS TO GO

As soon as the Municipal Council approve the one-way traffic on Kiangse and Szechuen Roads as a permanent regulation, traffic islands now maintained at the junctions of these streets and Nanking Road will be abolished, it was learned yesterday.

The present system of one-way traffic on the two streets was instituted May first but the Council has not yet given the new scheme its official sanction. Traffic is slowed up by the islands, which are now useless.

New York Jews Protest Against European Pogroms

Justice Demanded For Co-Religionists In Poland—Reports Of Killings True, Says Hughes

New York, May 19.—New York's Jewry rose yesterday in one mighty demonstration of protest against the massacres of people of their race, which have been reported recently from Poland, Rumania and other parts of central Europe.

Beginning early yesterday afternoon with scattered groups of mourners who paraded silently east side streets, the movement gathered momentum with amazing rapidity, culminating last night in one of the largest audiences that has ever packed itself into Madison Square Garden.

100,000 Were Turned Away

Chief Daly who had charge of the 600 policemen at the Garden, estimated there were 12,000 inside and that 100,000 had been turned away. Other police officials placed the number who started for the Garden and became discouraged when they saw packed humanity in front of the police lines at 200,000.

When Charles E. Hughes arose in the Garden, declared he had investigated the reports of massacres and from sources whose authenticity could not be doubted, had been satisfied of their truth and that it was now time for America to "speak," he was greeted by a crowd that packed even the aisles, supposed by the fire rules to be kept clear. And again and again throughout the course of the evening speakers were cheered with a fervor that nothing could check as they demanded pustice for the Jews of Europe.

The mass meeting was held under the auspices of the Committee on the Defense of the Jews of Poland.

Two days ago, this committee sent to three Jewish centers, frequented by soldiers, placards asking Jewish soldiers to join in a parade from Seward Park to the Garden yesterday afternoon. Had this parade been held under regularly constituted officials it could not have been more successful.

10,000 Veterans In Parade

Col. Maurice Simmons, veteran of the Spanish-American War, estimated as he dismounted from his horse in front of the Garden, that there were 10,000 soldiers and sailors behind him. More than a score of different divisions were represented, some from the Canadian forces, and a few English, members of the Jewish Legion which fought in Palestine. Twenty men at a telegraphic request came from Bridgeport, Conn., led by a corporal, to join in the demonstration.

The same spontaneity marked it that marked the rest of the demonstration. Under the guidance of Col. Simmons and three or four other commissioned officers, sergeants in the streets about Rutgers Square undertook the task of getting the men into line, and as they left the park the veterans were marching with military precision. At 14th Street they divided, half going up Fourth Avenue and the other half up Fifth Avenue. Some few of the paraders got lost and held impromptu meetings near 33rd Street, but the majority joined again at 42nd Street and Madison Avenue and marched down to the Garden.

"Stop killing Jews. We who fought for freedom are getting pogroms in return," read one of the banners, while on the left arm of every soldier was a black mourning band.

Following or accompanying the soldiers were all sorts of civilian paraders. Every other group carried a banner denouncing the Poles or calling for relief to the Jews. Those unable to get into the Garden joined in impromptu street meetings behind the lines a block away, which the police had established.

These parades had been made possible by the fact that in scores of trades thousands of Jewish workers quit work for the afternoon. There was an almost complete walkout of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, of furriers, hat and cap makers, while thousands in ninety-three unions affiliated with the United Hebrew Trades also quit for the day.

Wounded Ride In Motor Cars

For wounded soldiers, automobiles and trucks sufficient to carry 250 had been provided and every one of them was filled. There were also in line 300 Red Mogen David Nurses wearing white uniforms and red insignia and headed by Mrs. Charles Spivack, national president.

At one end of the Garden had been set up a huge colored cartoon, representing a figure of Liberty draped in the American flag holding back the sword of a monster represented as attacking a woman. Above in flaming letters the sign read:

"Poland, stop killing."

Before the speakers stand were two huge black posters bearing the inscription:

"We mourn the loss of our brethren in brutal massacres."

Jewish flags dressed in mourning, with American flags by their sides, flew above the speakers' heads while the crowd paid the same honor to the Hebrew National Song "Hatikvah" as it did to the "Star Spangled Banner," which had just preceded it. Nathan Straus, temporary chairman of the meeting, was introduced by Abraham Schomer, playwright, and in turn introduced Abram I. Elkus. The former Ambassador declared the meeting had been called not for revenge but to mourn "for those of our brethren whose lives have been ruthlessly destroyed in Poland and to insist that immediate fair, impartial investigation be had into all the circumstances surrounding the killing of Jewish men, women and children, the burning of their synagogues and the depriving them of their civil and economic rights.

Justice For Brethren Demanded

"We want no more killings and burnings," said Mr. Elkus, while the crowd shouted approval. "We want to secure the safety of the lives of the millions remaining and that they shall be accorded even handed justice. We make this plea to one by whom no demand for justice has as yet gone unheeded, our great leader, Woodrow Wilson!"

Mr. Hughes said in part:

"I am here to join you in voicing the public indignation at incredible atrocities and to demand speedy and impartial justice. These outrages are a betrayal of the cause for which we fought. They are a betrayal of the victory that has been won. It is well that a mighty protest should go up from an outraged race, but even better that a protest should go up from all, irrespective of race, in the name of humanity.

"America owes it to herself that at this time her people with one accord should unite in this effective protest. When I heard these tales of suffering in Poland they seemed well night incredible. I asked to to look at authenticated statements which could give support to the reports. It seems that all these accounts of robbery and murder and pillage, and of the defileing of sacred places are true. I say that if America stands for anything in her service to humanity, then now let America speak. There is not a vestige of excuse for these wrongs.

"Today there is at stake the cause of justice which is the cause of law and order itself. America has neither respect nor friendship for a people, great or small, that does not preserve law and order and put down the spirit of violence. The question is proper whether the peoples with this new opportunity will be able to save themselves by their own restraint. The first test comes when old prejudices are sought to be revived."

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise followed with a similar demand for justice for the Jews.

Pamphlets were distributed setting forth the details of 121 pogroms which it was asserted had occurred within the last year in Poland, Rumania and Galicia. It was declared that they had been carried out with the approval of the Polish authorities and that many thousands had been slaughtered. Resolutions which were adopted by the meeting and ordered sent to President Wilson, the American peace delegates, and Congress, read in part:

"The outrages were committed not only by violent and uncontrollable mobs, but were instigated by agencies acting openly in the face of the Polish authorities and program activities were countenanced and in many cases directly encouraged by representatives of the Polish Government.

The resolutions called on the American Government to use its good offices to end the atrocities.

TEETHING TIME NEED NOT MEAN TEARS

When baby's teeth are coming through is a time of worry to many mothers. The little one's gums become swollen and tender; he is cross; does not sleep well; is troubled with constipation, colic or diarrhoea, and sometimes even convulsions seize him.

During this period nothing can equal the use of Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and make the teething so easy that the mother scarcely realizes baby is getting his teeth.

These Tablets are equally healthful and harmless to the youngest infant and the child of eight or more, curing constipation, indigestion, colic, diarrhoea, simple fever and expelling worms.

Baby's Own Tablets are to be had from chemists, also post free at 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

JOB OF FEEDING EUROPE NEARLY ENDED FOR U. S.

Hoover Wires Administration Devastated Countries Are Ready To Stand On Own Feet

WORK DONE IS OUTLINED

Thousands Are Saved By American Relief; Nations Are Now Self-Sustaining

New York, May 18.—America's job of revictualling the peoples of Europe will end soon after June 30, when the last ship to be loaded with foodstuffs by the American Relief Association will sail from New York.

After this cargo of provisions is distributed the European countries, with the harvest of their first summer crops, will be required to maintain themselves. It will be the first time since the war began that America has not been called upon to send food relief to Europe.

Edgar Rickard, joint director of the relief administration, yesterday made public cabled advices from Herbert Hoover, the director general that the devastated European countries are almost ready to "stand on their own feet" so far as food is concerned. Mr. Rickard said that the summer crops in Europe, although necessarily subnormal, would be sufficient to tide the people over part of next winter, when, it is hoped, they will have recovered commercially and so will be able to get foods through the usual trade channels.

Belgium Self-Sustaining

Belgium, the first of the countries to be ravaged by war, is the first to become self-sustaining, Mr. Rickard said. The last relief cargo for Belgium was shipped on April 30.

Purchase of relief foodstuffs have practically ceased. At the ports of Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York yesterday forty-four ships, including some former German bottoms, were loading and were fast clearing away the foodstuffs already on hand. The Grain Corporation, co-operating with the relief administration, announced that there will be no further purchases of condensed or evaporated milk, oils, fats or pork products.

Rye flour and cereal flours will not be bought for shipment from the mills after June 10. Most of the mills are already sold up that far, so that buying of these products, following the discontinuance of wheat flour purchases ten days ago, already virtually has ceased.

America Leads Relief

Up to the last minutes, however, America will continue its unprecedented relief work, directed by Mr. Hoover, with the aid of his staff and young American army officers appointed by General Pershing. The last figures received from Mr. Hoover are for March. They show that of the 338,000 tons of food distributed by the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy, through the Supreme Economic Council, during the month 270,000 tons were furnished by America. Of the total of 111,000,000 expended for relief that month, $99,000,000 came from America.

Economic conditions are improving in the Balkan states to such an extent that some of them already are establishing credits which yield them from $5,000,000 to $9,000,000 a month, Mr. Rickard said.

United States Opens Up Markets

When the armistice was signed the territory from the Western front well on into the Russian provinces was split up into twenty-one states. Each state enforced an embargo against the others. The American Relief Administration undertook to open up economic relations. These interchanges of commodities resulted:

Sales of sugar from the Czechs to the Jugo-Slavs; salt from German Austria to Jugo-Slavia; oil from Gallicia to German Austria and the Czechs; coal from Czecho-Slovakia and Prussian Silesia into German Austria; furniture from German Austria to Jugo-Slavia; coal mine tools from German Austria to Czecho-Slovakia; pigs and maize from the Barra, and the Batchka into German Austria; oil and oil products from Rumania into Jugo-Slavia and Hungary, in return for food products; locomotives out of repair in Jugo-Slavia to Vienna for repair to be returned and distributed; matches from Vienna; for pigs and maize in Croatia; fabricated steel for bridge and railway constructions from Vienna and Hungary into Jugo-Slavia; telephone and telegraph equipment from German Austria in o Jugo-Slavia; and potatoes from Poland for sugar from the Czechs.

Hoover's Work Summarised

Mr. Hoover's pictures of America's part in recent relief work, as contained in cables just received, were thus summarised yesterday by Mr. Rickard:

"It was the American relief administration which saved Poland from anarchy by supplying food to the starving. All sections of critical famine are now under successful relief and as high as 4,500 tons of food a day have been transported by rail from Danzig to Warsaw.

"When Mr. Hoover's investigators went to Poland in 1919 they discovered that the people had just enough food to exist. The adult death rate was double and triple the normal one and that of children was four and five times the normal.

"The city of Lemberg, for instance, would have capitulated to the Germans but for the American relief administration, which made it possible for the defenders to hold out a little longer. The town had been surrounded on three sides when Captain Chauncey McCormick arrived with the first armored relief train on January 23. There was no food for children in the city and no water. Women stood at the city drinking fountains for three hours to get water and then stood again for hours in the bitter cold waiting for one litre of barley soup, which was their only means of existence.

One-third Of People Sick

"In the middle of March at Brest, in the Brest-Pinsk district of Poland, there was no milk nor meat whatever, the American relief administration investigator found. One-third of the population was sick in bed. The sick were receiving no medical attention. Nothing in the way of soup kitchens or milk stations were operating, because of the entire lack of foodstuffs.

"At Pinsk the priest told investigators that all of his time was taken up in performing burials. The soup kitchens were all closed because there was nothing with which to make soup. The prison inmates had nothing to eat but frozen potatoes. Refugees were herded together in churches and gathering places. In one room visited 200 people were living and cases of typhus and other sickness were kept without any attempt at isolation.

"One old lady visited by the Americans was given a twenty-mark note. But as there was no food to be bought she simply looked at the bill and said, 'What am I going to do with this?'"

Inhabitants Kiss Americans

"Two weeks after the Americans first went to Pinsk they returned with five cars of American food. Soup kitchens which had been closed the week before were opened and fed 3,000 people. As the Americans passed the inhabitants kissed their coats and thanked them for the flour which they had sent. The old lady who had wondered what she could do with the twenty marks given her greeted the party with smiles. She arose from the stove where she had been cooking gruel, supplied by the Relief and hugged every member of the party. In the hospitals where the patients before had had only infrequent rations of war bread they were eating a well-made white bread and drinking cups of hot condensed milk.

"The same rapid rehabilitation which is being accomplished by the American Relief Administration in Poland is being duplicated in the other countries which need American food and American aid—in Armenia, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Servia, Finland and the Baltic States.

Thousands Of Children Saved

"One of the most remarkable phases of American activity of the present day in Europe is the way children who have suffered all through the war from malnutrition are being restored to health. In some parts of Rumania and Poland the men of the Relief Administration found that many children were born weighing slightly over four pounds. In some places the children were too weak from lack of food to go to the soup kitchens which had been provided for them. They were only able to sit weakly on the street curbings and beg for help. During the month of April the child feeding work of the administration has been generally distributed over the liberated countries of Europe.

"On return boats from the Near East to the United States arrangements have been made for cargoes of rugs, carpets, tobacco and licorice. To further this work control of the railroads in Austria-Hungary and other states was given over to Mr. Hoover, who operated through trains to carry food from coast states into the interior when needed. He also borrowed cars from different nationalities in proper proportion, guaranteeing to return cars after peace was established and inter-communication between countries was put on firm and lasting basis."

THE MANAGEMENT

PROHIBITION PROPOSED FOR JAPANESE EMPIRE

Baron Shibusawa Dubious But It Receives Approval Of Baron Sakatani

Tokio, June 20.—Nation-wide prohibition for Japan was proposed to a score of Tokio business men and officials by Baron Sakatani at a dinner given at the Banker's Club in honor of Dr. D. M. Gandier, a prominent American propagandist of a world prohibition movement.

The speech in which Baron Sakatani favored the immediate launching of a prohibition movement in Japan followed an extended resume of the American prohibition campaign by Dr. Gandier. The dinner was given by Baron Shibusawa and there were present the American Ambassador, Mr. Roland S. Morris; the Home Minister, Mr. Tokonami; the Mayor of Tokio, Viscount Tajiri; Mr. K. Uchida, Mr. H. Nagao and other prominent men of Tokio.

Baron Shibusawa expressed some doubt of the advisability of enforcing immediate prohibition upon Japanese laborers but Baron Sakatani said the facts and figures shown by Dr. Gandier proved that the evils of the traffic should be taught in Japan as well as elsewhere.

"If the vice of drinking is so clearly realised by the people at large, it is not necessary to consider now about the advisability of prohibition, but, on the contrary, we ought to immediately set about a nation-wide propaganda for prohibition," Baron Sakatani exclaimed.

POISON ALARMIST FINED

Yang Yoong-foong, charged with circulating rumors that rice sold by the Da Fun Tah rice shop on Woosung Road was poisoned, was fined $40 and ordered to pay the cost of an analysis of the cereal by Assessor Spiker and Magistrate Li in the Mixed Court yesterday. In giving judgment the Assessor laid emphasis on the seriousness of the defendant's action at a time when the public mind was in a state of great unrest and when two Chinese had been beaten to death on account of just such rumors. In view of the fact that the defendant had not spread the rumor abroad, however, the court would exercise leniency. The Magistrate also cautioned the defendant.

China Political Notes From Chinese Press

The amalgamation of the Chiwei, Yenchiu and the Old Chiaotung cliques is being carried out. They propose to sacrifice the new Parliament, destroy the Anfu Club and have control over the next election. Propagandists have been sent to the various parts of the country to attack the new Parliament.

The conclusion of separate peace with the Southwest will begin with Western Hupeh and Fukien, it is learned.

The trip of Mr. Chien Nung-hsun to Tientsin was on account of the deadlock of the peace situation. He intends to go to Peitaiho for a short sojourn in order to consult Mr. Chu Chi-chien, the chief delegate, on the peace negotiations.

While Mr. Chang Shou-ling persistently refuses to accept the war portfolio, General Chin Ying-peng continues to be absent from his post. General Chin has announced that unless Acting Premier Kung Hsin-chan leaves his office, he will never return to duty.

A conference of the directors of the Tientsin, Hanyang, Shanghai, Tehsien and Kunghsien Arsenals has been called by the Ministry of War. They are requested to be in Peking before the end of July.

The Tang Chi-yao clique of Szechuen has inaugurated an alliance for Szechuen, Yunnan and Kweichow. Its members have proposed that General Tang be stationed in Chungking to supervise the affairs of the three provinces. The Szechuen loyalists, however, are opposed to the movement.

The Northern peace delegates, who are proceeding South, have been instructed by Peking to show their willingness to yield to the Southern delegation. As soon as the Southern delegates show signs that they are no longer firm on their original terms, the Shanghai Conference will be resumed.

The Meaning And Portent Of Orlando's Fall

THE summary of Dr. Dillon's despatch from Paris concerning the Italian situation which we print today, the first word on the reasons for the fall of the Orlando cabinet, is fairly well what any observing man might have reconstructed for himself out of a general knowledge of present world conditions. It is the appearance on the surface of the real conflict that underlies all the outward conventionalities of politics as they exist in every Western country. The cables hum with news of the Paris peace conference, but the determinant of world stability in the next ten years is not the peace conference. That conference is a lesser factor. The real determinant is the settlement of the social problem. Four and a half years of war cut too deeply into realities for political labels to have any potency and for conferences of "statesmen" to have power of ultimate decision.

Of that truth Italy is splendid evidence. Italian crowds cheered Orlando by the thousands, the hundreds of thousands. But Orlando fell. And Fiume and Dalmatia were but minor influences in his fall. The real causes were, to quote the cablegram, "That Italy is seething with discontent and an unprecedented crisis, moral, economic and political." The Italian government sought to allay that discontent with traditional soothings; with territorial enlargements, economic and commercial gains, indemnities, dreams of future imperial grandeurs and the like: all from the stock in trade of more superficial times. The Italian Government failed. It failed because all these things, however much they may mean to one small class, are of no concern to the masses of men who make up Italy. They do not touch the realities of their lives that the war has bared, they do not go to the roots of the greatest social crisis in man's history.

And Italy is but the weather vane. What has come to a head there will come to a head in every country in the West, possibly even in the East. In other countries it is only being postponed until the conclusion of peace, for none of the victorious peoples want to cheat themselves of the fruits of their hard-won victory. But it will come. It has begun, in an orderly fashion, in England. It has given unmistakable notices of its coming in France. In Spain it is seething. In Belgium, Holland, Switzerland and Scandinavia it is preparing. In the United States it is still in the early stages of making, because America has been least affected by the war. In Russia, Germany, Austria and Hungary it is already history.

It will come. How it will be dealt with, whether by the orderly processes of law, as it bids fair to be in England, or by the torch and machine-gun, as it has in Russia, will depend upon the ability of the men at the head of governments, industry and finance to face facts squarely and with constructive vision. From what indications there are at present the prospect is pessimistic. The nations are still under the sway of politicians, and politicians are capable of conceiving only the slogans and empty conventions that are the stakes of their meaningless game; and of "statesmen," and statesmen's ideas and outlook are rooted in a past that died in August 1, 1914. The world is faced with political bankruptcy and it must seek its salvation elsewhere. Not from men such as these can it expect any realisation of fundamentals. These fundamentals are that the majority of men—not only those who are referred to as the "working classes"—are dissatisfied with the organisation of society as it exists now; rather, as it existed in 1914, for society was cast in a mold when the world went to war. They will refuse to see that society organised on the arrangements of 1914. They will demand a fairer organisation, an organisation that will give them more out of life. For the sufferings of war they will want recompense. And more than that, for the evils that were revealed when the war broke the ruts of habit they will want remedies and just remedies. Only fools will call that Bolshevism. For if it is Bolshevism ninety-nine percent of the world's population is Bolshevik. The symptoms are too nearly universal to be solved by glib brandings.

Civilisation faces an issue. It cannot evade it. That issue is as big and as concrete as the passing of feudalism and the emergence of industrialism. But whereas those stages evolved slowly, this one is dramatic, thrust on the world with little preparation, so that those who think in ruts grasp wildly in bewilderment for recognisable straws. But the crisis is there and it must be met. And governments will tumble and statesmen sink into oblivion until it is met. The next generation will be epochal; one can only pray that there will be enough wisdom to prevent its being cataclysmic.

Rent Question As Old As Man

Next to the ownership of women and herds of cattle, landholding is probably the oldest form of private property in the world, says the New York Sun. From the outset, it was bound to be one of the most important forms of private property, for no matter how plentiful land might be, it was nevertheless always at the basis of human life. Normadic tribes needed grazing land for their herds, and wars for the possession of fertile, well watered territory are recorded as early as human history can be traced.

When agriculture became an important means of obtaining a livelihood, the importance of landholding increased; and since agriculture tended to stabilise life, fixing desirable plains and valleys as the permanent abode of large tribes, landholding began to be regulated by methods other than the primitive one of "take what you can get and hold on to what you can."

In this manner rent is born, for as soon as the possession of land is recognised and protected by society, anyone wishing to use a parcel of land already in the hands of another must be prepared to pay a market price for its use. What the market price is depends on the conditions of the time and the place, in the same way as the price for any service is paid in the prevailing coin and quality.

The oldest form of rent is probably the payment of work for protection. Some arrangement had to be made by the owners of small parcels to protect them against the aggression of their more powerful neighbors or against the invasion of foreign tribes. In such cases they turned naturally to their wealthier tribesmen, and promised to contribute whatever might be agreed upon between them in return for the desired protection. Money being quite unknown at this early date, the payment took the form of work and farm products, to which might be added the promise of military service.

The power thus granted tended to become centralised, the commoner going to the lord, the latter to the overlord, and so on. Ultimately, too, the original nature of the bargain is lost sight of, and the lords of various degrees become in various measures owners of the land they are defending. From that time on the actual occupant of the land pays rent. That is, instead of paying for the protection of the land he pays for the use of the land. How this occurred in Lithuania, the oldest European republic, now seeking independence and recognition, and how conditions were changed by the present government, makes an interesting story.

The Lithuanian nobility took title to the land in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, when the country was being attacked from all sides and some sort of defense had to be organised. From that time until the nineteenth century the peasantry were practically landless, but in 1864 each peasant was made owner of the parcel of land he was actually cultivating. As far as this distribution went, it made Lithuania a country of prosperous farmers who could afford to educate their children and give them a good start in life.

But some elements of the population still remained with insufficient land or no land at all. This condition was remedied by the present Lithuanian government, who gave the landless class all the land belonging to the state and the land abandoned by the Russian absentee landlords. Thus Lithuania is now once more the farming community it was before its partition by Russia and Prussia, and is waiting for recognition and free trading opportunities with the outside world before it takes its place as a prosperous commonwealth. Lithuania presents her solution of the land problem as an additional basis for recognition.

George Creel Speaks His Mind On American Press

A notable article, singularly outspoken, on the American newspaper, by Mr. George Creel, chairman of the Committee of Public Information, appears in Everybody's Magazine.

"One famous editor once frankly confessed that his idea of a 'good' paper was to have the reader exclaim, 'My God!' upon unfolding it. This fetish is responsible for certain amazing traditions. Every reporter is brought up on the ancient phrase, 'a nose for news.' A 'shop' saying quoted to 'cubs' is this: 'If a dog bites a man, that isn't news; but if a man bites a dog, that's news.'

"Always cheap, this cheapness became terrible during those days when the world, like some great shell of the sea, echoed unceasingly the moan of mangled men, orphaned children, and widowed women. What we needed then, if ever, was a heart for news, a soul for news," says Mr. Creel.

"It was this lack of the thoughtful, the interpretative, the informative, and the educational that was so keenly felt by the Government throughout its whole fight for a unified public opinion. The country press, from the very start, was a tower of strength, the so-called 'provincial' dailies were helpful in amazing degree; but the metropolitan press, save in certain notable cases, took little time or space to flight for understanding. We were compelled to turn to pamphlets in order that the people might have the facts; but had we used every printing office in the country we could not have filled all the requests that came from thousands eager for the truth, and anxious to find their way out of the bedevilment into which they had been plunged by incoherences and passions.

"The case for the editorial is no better than that for the news column. One can count on the fingers the editorial pages of the country that carry weight. And there are good reasons. For the most part, the average run of editors 'den up' in their sanctums, either spinning out of themselves like so many silkworms, or else penning condemnation or approval based upon facts that another man has gathered and into the truth of which they have not inquired. They are the victims of self-induced paralysis, they avoid the living stream and slosh, around in the backwaters of life.

"To gather together into the room ninety percent of the editorials printed in the papers of the United States during the war would be to create a Chamber of Horrors. It was not so much their utter reckiessness, their utter disregard of facts, but their fatuity, their futility. Nine out of ten shouted this confession as though it had been printed across each editorial's face, 'Another day. A column to fill! Oh, Lord, I wonder if this will do?' At most, there are ten editorial pages in the country that deserve and possess power and influence.

"A reason for the decline of the editorial, perhaps, and certainly a factor for inquiry as far as the national service was concerned, may be found in the persistence of the 'party organ.' Automatic support contributes as little to intelligent discussion as automatic attack. Just as Democratic papers felt constrained to 'point with pride,' so did Republican papers feel constrained to 'view with alarm.' As a consequence, no issue is presented as a whole, fairly and interpretatively, but one side is put forward in flat antagonism to the other, compelling the reader to make a choice between two distorted representations.

"Opposition papers, putting party before country, hurt us more than all the publications subsidised by German funds.

"When we preached the gospel of American idealism, the Germans would quote from American papers denunciations of the 'hypocrisy' of Mr. Wilson; when we talked of Belgium and Servia, the Germans would return with opposition newspaper attacks upon America's sincerity in the matter of Haiti, San Domingo, and Porto Rico; when we told of American achievement, the Germans simply cried 'Yankee lies,' and quoted Republican papers to prove that we had ordered nothing but coffins, that we had no guns, but only broomsticks, that our whole war program was cursed by every neglect, inefficiency, and failure.

"All of which is not personal or peculiar, but merely a commonplace of politics. Lincoln was called upon to endure the same attack from behind, and McKinley suffered more from the opposition papers in the United States than he did from the whole press of Spain.

"Worst of all, it is an evil that does not end with war. Reconstruction, and even the days after reconstruction, makes demand for the sane, the true, and the constructive in public discussion. There are, unfortunately, no ready-made remedies for the failures of the press any more than there are patent cures for the other fundamental evils in our national life. But just as a 'get the money' policy has been responsible for the breakdown, so may enlightened acquisitiveness prove the agency of correction.

"Measured in terms of power, the press has not half the influence it had in the days when 'extras' were unknown, and when editors recognised their high responsibilities. Election after election proves conclusively that the press is not the controlling factor that it believes itself to be or that timorous politicians imagine. Governors and mayors have been put into office repeatedly over the united antagonism of the press.

"The general attitude toward the average newspaper man is one of either patronage or irritation. In other countries, newspaper men go from their offices to the high places of government and back again, wielding supreme power; but in America, when political honors are being distributed, some petty post or secretarial position is blandly assumed to be the limit of journalistic ambition and ability.

"The majority of newspapers are not making normal profits by any means. The circulation of the average daily is nowhere near its possibility in reference to the population of its community. Publishers bewail this, and it may yet be that they will hunt for the reason in the right place.

"And the reason is that they are too close to themselves and too far away from people. The press employs none of the keen laboratory methods to which other industries turn more and more. Unlike every other selling organisation, it makes no effort to study its trade in order to find out what it needs or what it wants.

"Either reforms will be brought about, or else loss of public faith and loss of intellectual leadership will be followed by collapsed circulations and absent advertising. And as this happens, other mediums will trench more and more on what the press regards as its own peculiar preserves. The magazines, undoubtedly. The motion pictures, perhaps. There are already four 'film news weeklies' in operation, and the possibilities of the screen in this direction have been scarcely touched. In our fight for public opinion in foreign countries, the handicap of an antagonistic press was overcome in almost every instance by our use of the film as a medium of information and appeal.

"But no matter the reason, reform must come. The press will have to get back to a responsibility to the whole people, as business will have to, and Government will have to. The world is not going to be run for the business profits of trade imperialism. This country is not going to be so run. Neither is its business. And neither are its newspapers, as a part of that business."

In Kerry

By Christine Kerr Davis

The primrose path winds down the hill
And round the lough—in Kerry!
And the west wind harps a lyric
That is older than the sea.
The hawthorn buds are breaking,
And the birds are making merry
In every tangled hedgerow,
And in every whispering tree.

In the rainbow hush or dawning
A missel-thrush will call me,
And me not there to answer,
Or to follow that light wing
Through woodland and through water.
Not caring what befall me,
So I catch a lilting cadence
Like the song the fairies sing.

And the shamrocks, Oh, the shamrocks!
The soft, sweet rain is falling
Like a silver veil around them,
And they're laughing like with glee.
And the heart of me is homesick
For the old sweet ways are calling,
It's spring, it's spring—in Kerry!
And me not there to see!—Scribner's.

Free Press In Shanghai

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir,—I want to congratulate you on the stand you have taken against the proposed licensing of the press and of all printing establishments. We have finished Prussianism in Europe and don't want any of it in Shanghai.

I wonder if the general public is aware of the censorship which the Municipal Police now exercise over the Chinese press. Several Chinese newspaper men have informed me that if any of the local Chinese papers ventures to criticise any activity of the Municipal Council, the editor is immediately visited by some member of the police force who demands a retraction and explanation. Of course the police have no authority to do this, but the Chinese editor is easily intimidated.

If the Municipal Police do this now, without legal authority, what may we expect them to do if their meddling with the press is legalised.

Enclosing my card, I am

Japanese Red Cross Accused

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir,—The present Korean revolution, which has already aroused considerable attention throughout the world, is by no means the erratic sentiment of a few rebellious persons nor any mere outbreak, as the Imperial Japanese Government at first attempted to have the world believe by her low methods of censorship and libel, but it is an universally recognised fact now that it is distinctly the united voice of 20,000,000 of Korean people crying out to Heaven and humanity for freedom and justice. And while it has furnished the world with innumerable indictments against Japanese cold blooded brutality in Korea, there are still some things that are not generally recognised by the world. And the policy of the Japanese Red Cross is one more proof that the moral force is entirely lacking in the Japanese character and that she is entirely unfit to occupy the seat of a civilised nation, say nothing of Korean "protectorship."

According to all the authentic statisticians and reliable correspondents, both Korean and foreigners, except the Japanese, over 15,000 Korean lives have been ruthlessly killed during the "Pacification" period dating from the time of annexation in 1910 to January of 1919. And already 2,500 lives have been murdered and 20,000 more in the prisons, most of them with severe injuries whose lives are in contant danger by addition of unbearable tortures, since the Declaration of Korean Independence on the first of March, 1919. Besides the hundreds of thousands of women and children who have suddenly become homeless and helpless caused by the ruthless burning of their houses, schools and Churches. In many places the whole villages, and even the whole towns are burned to the ground. Thus the Korean history during the last decade, especially since the first of March, has been written in letters of blood dripping from the point of sword.

With this brief review of the Korean situation in mind, we shall turn our attention to the discussion of the Japanese Red Cross itself. As we understand, the object and purpose of any Red Cross is the prevention and relief of human suffering regardless of national or racial differences both in time of peace and in time of war. Thereby the Red Cross is bound by duty to treat every suffering person alike, whether he be an enemy or its own countryman, even in time of war. For this reason, the soldiers are prohibited from firing into the Red Cross on the enemy's side even when engaged in a battle. But contrary to the general understanding, the Japanese Red Cross has abused its rights bestowed upon it to collect money from the Koreans and in such times of calamity as the present revolution, when the persons passing the streets of any city, town or village, cannot help but see at least some dying or injured who often had to lay helpless on the street for hours, has not treated nor taken care of a single dead or injured person either directly or indirectly. But more than that, some even have sympathised with their soldiers and took part in striking and arresting the Korean doctors and nurses who tried to help the injured as they found them on the streets suffering and dying with bayonet or bullet wounds. Likewise the Japanese Red Cross has looked upon with suspicion the foreign doctors and mission hospitals for taking in the injured and treating them.

Therefore we, the Koreans, believing that the Japanese Red Cross is either incapable of performing its duties or intentionally neglected them, have formed a Korean Red Cross for the prevention and relief of human suffering in Korea. Secondly, the Japanese Red Cross by abusing its name has collected large sums of money from the Koreans with numerous pretenses, but judging from the experiences of the past ten years and especially during the present independence movement, they show that they lack the moral force which is the foundation of all the civilisations, and that they have not the slightest regard for human life. Therefore the Korean Red Cross demand that it shall return the money to the contributors, or turn it over to the Korean Red Cross so that it may be used as it was intended to be used. And in conclusion the Japanese Red Cross has stained the name of the Red Cross and violated the international law, so the Korean Red Cross demand its immediate dissolution at least in Korea and return to the Island where they came from, for Korea is not the proper place for them and that the Koreans are not in need of their forced so-called "help" or "protection."

Flesh-Eating And Ferocity

How did our ancestors take to eating flesh food Did one of them suddenly conclude to serve up one of his enemies for lunch after he had slain him in combat? Or did he take to eating meat from physiologic necessity, after the stock of wild-vegetable proteins had failed him? And has his meat diet improved his abilities as a fighter? Here, apparently, vegetarians and flesh-eaters do not agree. The war just ended has certainly demonstrated that there is still in man much of the wild beast. Dr. Harry Campbell, a London physician, who believes both in fighting and in flesh-eating, seeks, in an article in The Lancet (London), to find an explanation for human savagery and ferocity in man's acquired carnivorous habits. He says:

"It was the conditions entailed by a hunting career which brought about the evolution of the prehuman ape into man. For, observe the curious situation—assuredly one of the most eventful and dramatic in the whole of man's evolution—when this creature took to hunting. Here was a being lacking the stereotyped equipment for slaughter, instinctive and anatomical, of the carnivora, but gifted with an intelligence surpassing that of any other creature, and endowed with prehensile hands capable of giving effect to that intelligence.

"The fact that carnivorism makes for ferocity and develops the fighting instinct has this interest—that man is himself carnivorous. Indeed, in the matter of slaughter he leaves all other animals far behind. He is the arch-slaughterer. Since the time the prehuman ape took to hunting, he and his human descendants have wrought ruthless havoc among the lower animals, and at the present day man not only hunts them, but breeds them for the express purpose of destroying them, chiefly for food, partly for amusement. Many a person of gentle nature would be amazed and horrified were he at the end of a long life to see en masse the hecatombs of living things done to death on his behalf."

The editor of Good Health (Battle Creek, Mich.,) commends what he calls Dr. Campbell's frank admission that flesh-eating, with the slaughter-house and other cruelties which it involves, tends to foster and maintain in man the brutal qualities which are manifested in the barbarities and cruelties of war. But he regards the doctor as wholly at fault in thinking that flesh-eating and hunting were essential to the development of the aggressive spirit in man, or even the fighting spirit, for—

"Man did not have to leave the forest and his frugivorous diet and become a hunter and killer of animals in order to develop his brain. Primitive man sought the plain not to find animals—there were plenty of animals in the forest—but to find food, and as rapidly as possible developed the art of agriculture so as to secure to himself and his family a certain food-supply.

"Man's resort to the use of flesh food was doubtless prompted by his instinctive search for complete proteins when the nut trees (largely nut pines, probably) were killed off by change of climate or some cataclysmic event which destroyed an essential source of complete protein without which development and life could not be maintained.

"Among the fiercest fighters of the forest are animals which are not flesh-eaters, as, for example, the buffalo of our Western plains and the bison of India. Dr. Sanderson, the great elephant hunter, said he would far rather encounter a lion than a wounded bison.

"The rhinoceros, which lives on the coarsest herbage, is so fierce a fighter that the lion flees before him. The elephant, though timid, is no coward, and often gives up its life in resisting captivity.

"The gorilla has long been known as the fiercest beast of the forest. It will kill a hunter by a blow with a club, and will snap his gun-barrel with a grip of its hands, but it will not eat him.

"The vegetarian is a good fighter, but he does not torture. Cruelty is a trait peculiar to carnivorous animals. The cat often tortures the mouse for a long time before she kills and eats it.

"A certain species of wasp paralyses a fat caterpillar and shuts it up in a cell with its eggs, to be devored by its young, piecemeal, while still alive, and incapable of making a motion in defense.

"Certainly, man had abundant opportunity to develop fighting qualities in defending himself against his enemies, which the testimony of the rocks shows to have been great and numerous enough to call forth his highest means of escape and protection.

"The gorilla uses his hands as man does. He has learned to fight with a club and uses stones as missiles. He is so skilful in the use of these weapons as to be more than a match for a man armed with the same weapons.

"The idea that man had to eat his enemy after killing him, to acquire a hankering for flesh and a thirst for blood in order to be a good fighter, is preposterous. The only mental quality man has acquired through the appetite for flesh is the disposition to slay in cold blood and not in self-defense or the heat of rage, to take life merely for pleasure, for sport—to take delight in cruelty."

Christina Rossetti's Love Story

"Christina Rossetti is popularly known as a religious poet of the first rank, having composed a very large body of religious verse. But she is also a poet of the passion of love singing out of her own sharp and abiding suffering," writes Elizabeth Parker, in the Toronto University Magazine.

"At the ripe age of fifty-four she wrote 'One Seaside Grave,' a little lyric long supposed to refer to the burial place of Dante Gabriel Rossetti at Birchington-on-Sea. But now we know, since Mr. W. M. Rossetti has told us, that it is the resting grave of Charles Cayley, whom she loved deeply and passionately but would not marry, and who, in turn, loved her until death. We find traces of this sorrow in a poem, 'Sleeping at Last,' written the year before her death at sixty-three. More than once on her dying bed she talked with her brother about Cayley and of the love for him 'in terms of passionate intensity.'

"When she had reached the age of thirty-two she began to meet Charles Bagot Cayley, a shy scholar who had once been a student of her father's, a rare unworldly spirit as deeply steeped in Dante as the Rossettis themselves. As scholar and man he was known to an exclusive circle. Ford Madox Brown put him in a picture. 'Crabtree Watching the Transit of Venus,' in Manchester Town Hall. There it is this day for any who are curious to see the portrait of the man whom Christina Rossetti loved while he lived, and whom she mourned when he died.

"'By Way of Remembrance,' a poem of four sonnet-stanzas, written in 1870, was addressed to Cayley. In it occur these lines:

I love you and you know it—this at least,
This comfort is my own in all my pain;
You know it, and I can never doubt again,
And love's mere self is a continual feast;
Not oath of mine nor blessing word of priest
Could make my love more certain or more plain.

"Why did she not marry Cayley, loving him so 'She would gladly have accepted his offer,' says her brother, 'but that scrupulous conscience of hers put it to the old test of faith.' His religious views were far removed from here and there would be a barrier between husband and wife. Consequently 'with a sore heart,' she refused to marry him.

"Their friendship remained unbroken and he continued to be a frequent visitor to 30, Torrington Square, which was Christina Rossetti's last home. He died in sleep one night in December, 1883, at the age of sixty. It was the night of her fifty-third birthday. When she heard the news she went straight to her brother's office in Somerset Houses. 'I shall not easily forget,' he says, 'the look of her face, and the strain of self-command in her voice; she did not break down.' Until her own death in 1894, Cayley's memory was the most precious human thing to her.

"The poem, 'One Seaside Grave,' refers, as I said, to the grave of Cayley, who was buried at Hastings."

BORDEN'S MALTED MILK is a complete food, not a milk modifier.
It can't sour; no germs can touch it.
In Borden's Malted Milk you get milk from healthy cows, purified, free from germs; the calf needs are modified—the baby needs are added. Reduced to a powder, it comes to you in an air-tight bottle, no hand has touched it. It is a complete food, so you add only water and boil one minute, and you can know that you are giving your baby the food his little body needs.

CHINESE IN PARIS PUT ALL BLAME ON BALFOUR

Say That He Is Irrevocably Committed To Support All Japan's Claims

(The New York Times)

Paris, May 9.—The Chinese delegation cable to the Peking Government for instructions as to what to do in regard to signing or not signing the treaty crossed the message from Peking advising against signature. The latter message was sent by the Chinese Prime Minister before he had had time to receive the cable. He told the delegates that if they signed the treaty it would be bad not only for China, but also for themselves, as they would all probably be lynched on their return to China.

The delegates in Paris, however, does not regard this message as final or official, but merely a piece of personal advice. They will wait for an answer to their official request for instructions before determining their final line of action at the Peace Conference. The delegates have also received a warning from the Joint Commission of North and South China, now in session at Shanghai, urging them not to sign.

Nevertheless, despite this exchange by cable between Paris and the Far East, the Chinese delegates here, as well as the representatives of other Powers, think that China will sign the treaty, registering at the same time her protest against the Shantung decisions. The Chinese delegates made such a protest and reservation at the last secret plenary session of the Conference at which the terms of the treaty were revealed to the small nations.

The Chinese in Paris attribute their defeat almost entirely to Arthur J. Balfour of the British delegation, who as Foreign Minister, they say, is irrevocably committed to the support of all Japanese claims, regardless of their character.

A Chinese diplomat said this afternoon:

"We are not bitter toward Wilson for his failing us in the crisis. He had obstacles that were insurmountable. Balfour is the sole author of our defeat. Wilson could and would have stood out against Japan alone, but he could not stand against the combination of Great Britain and Japan, and that was the combination which confronted him because of the Asiatic policy of Balfour."

J. L. GARVIN DENOUNCES PEACE TREATY TERMS

Editor Of London Observer Says It Sows Seeds Of Next War

London, June 20.—Under the hearing of "Peace and Dragon's Teeth." Mr. J. L. Garvin had a remarkable article in the Observer on the Peace Treaty. The Treaty offered to Germany is variously described as a "paper peace," "peace with a vengeance," "peace with folly," and "a patchwork hinting peril in every seam." Here is his outstanding criticism:

"In the twentieth century, with all its democratic movements and protests, despite all the lessons of Armageddon, these terms try to do what Louis the Fourteenth, Frederick, the Napoleons great and less, Bismarck, attempted. The failure of them all has been written on ruined walls in letters of fire."

Apart from the "incorporated and saving Covenant" of the League of Nations, Mr. Garvin declares that "all the Treaty scatters dragon's teeth across the soil of Europe," which will "spring up as armed men unless the mischief is eradicated by other and better labors."

He goes on:

"We strove not for the domination of the victors, but for the redemption even of the enemy and the reconciliation of mankind. No lesser motive, none, could have been worth the unparalleled sacrifice, sorrow, the effort and endurance of that vast agony.

"Now, instead of the clean break with the deadly examples of the past, instead of the epoch-making departure from the traditional diplomacy, instead of the best of settlements after worst of wars, we have a Treaty which in its main features is as devoid of constructive wisdom, and even of fundamental common sense, as of every trace of the Sermon on the Mount. The thing will not prosper. Within a few years either the thing will be changed by universal consent or worst will befall us all."

While giving all honor to President Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George for devising the League of Nations, "which offers a good chance of redeeming all," Mr. Garvin wishes that President Wilson had "either been less rigid in his principle or firmer in his action," and that the Prime Minister had been "less fettered by his election pledges, so as to be truer to the real Mr. Lloyd George, whose moderating and reconciling powers, when he chooses to exercise them, are the best of his gifts."

Balkanised Europe

The world suggested to us under the Treaty, Mr. Garvin argues, is to be "based on militarism, and nothing else, for a long term of years." As to indemnities, he says that after the first £1,000,000,000 required from Germany nothing will be sure. "Tribute running for years to more thousands of millions will be a permanent incitement to unrest, protest, conspiracy, to international agitation, and intrigue."

If the Germans are wise, says Mr. Garvin, they will sign the Treaty. But under present conditions they will sign as the French signed in 1871. "The rootvice of the whole Treaty is that it leaves the German race no real hope except in revenge—no matter how long the revenge may have to be deferred." The Treaty will encourage the Germans to link up with Russia—"in politics, commerce, aesthetics." "This Treaty tends to Balkanise three-fourths of Europe." He adds:

"The best amongst us did not fight and work only to end by the adoption of German principles now repudiated by millions of the Germans themselves. We fought and worked, not for the mere domination of the victors nor for the selfish security of a few, but for the redemption even of the enemy and for the reconciliation of mankind. That alone is the truth, and it will prevail."
